ABSTRACT

These bibliographies list resources on the mental health and social adjustment of refugees. A majority of the cited references are specifically about Southeast Asian refugees. Each citation includes author, title, date of publication, and the name of the publisher or organization through which it is available. Books, journal articles, and pamphlets or papers produced by a variety of organizations are included. The supplement is organized by topic: (1) mental health problems and needs of refugees; (2) models for delivering mental health services; (3) indigenous refugee medical practices and beliefs; (4) roles and training of mental health paraprofessionals; and (5) coordination between refugee and mental health services.
